

SELLS, Harold B., 63, of Dandridge, Tenn., passed away July 4, 2010. Harold was a native of Tampa,

where he retired as a sergeant of the Homicide Squad, after serving 24 years with the Tampa Police Department. He is survived by his wife, Karen Sells; daughter, Anissa Sells; stepdaughter, Amber Bell; brother, Randall Sells; and sister, Jamie Sells. He was a loving husband, father and brother. Harold had a kind smile that lightened up every room he walked into. His kindness and giving heart was what he was most known for. He was a man that loved not only his family and friends but also his country, which he demonstrated when he honorably served in the U.S. Army, during the Vietnam War. A memorial service in Tampa will be announced at a later date.

Published in TBO.com on July 11, 2010